OPEN AIR BOXING CONTESTS FAVORED

New York Promoters Plan to Give Game Big Boost by Holding Exhibition in the Open.

(By Hal Sheridan.)
New York, Nov. 24.—Outdoor boxing, as planned for New York fight night, will give the ring game the biggest boost it has received in years. Both fighters and fans would benefit by boxing in the open.

An open air fight club could be accommodated in the largest enclosed arena. New York promoters said today that because of this they will cut down on the price of all tickets excepting those for ringside seats.

The boxer would benefit most through fighting in the open air, where he could fill his lungs with the maximum amount of oxygen. The theory on that point is that a boxer who fights in the open air will be able to fight in the smoke-choked, fabled atmosphere of an enclosed ring, which any medic would tell you would frequently prevent knockouts. The theory on this point is that a boxer who fights in the open air will be able to fight in the smoke-choked, fabled atmosphere of an enclosed ring, which any medic would tell you would frequently prevent knockouts.

This outdoor fight scheme is not a new one. It has been tried and tested with greatest success. As in the case with a lot of our innovations, this one comes from the west, or middle west, or middle east, if you happen to be living back in New York.

It was at Indianapolis where the open air bouts proved so eminently successful.

They have been held there on the eve of the big autumnal speedway races for the last four or five years. Ray Bronson and Packey McFarland were the ones to inaugurate this plan at Indianapolis. Although the fight was held in the open, the crowd was big and a paying crowd present.

At the Frank Klaus-Jack Dillon fight at Indianapolis two years ago 22,000 persons sat in the open arena to see the go, and among that number were 1,000 women, who would never have been at an indoor scrap. The women also attended the Levinsky-Dillon outdoor scrap last year in great numbers.

Of course, when open air fights are held the afternoon, there is no necessity for lights. At night, all the lights excepting three huge ones directly over the ring, are doused.

Still another result of the war in Europe—in all probability—will be felt in the United States. The coming winter, unless the war should cease very soon, the arena rink will not be available for hockey and skating purposes, the city council deciding that the rink should have first call on the building, which is also very suitable for training the soldiers. The arena was the popular place to go for skating and hockey last winter, and Commissioner Harrison estimates that 40,000 persons visited it, which means in street car fares to the city about $4,000 and the city received $1,000 rent. This may mean that hockey will languish in Edmonton for a season or more.

Three Eyes league magnates will be anxious if the national association solves the circuit problem for next year. The recommendation at the Omaha meeting that Rock Island succeed Springfield is just what the Three Eyes leaders desired, but they fear the preference of a faction there in favor of the Central association. With Duquesne ready to return to the fold, supported by a new organization of business men, and Rock Island as the successor to Springfield, the Three Eyes league will be among the most compact in the west, marked by small mileage and transportation expenses.

SEEK TO RE-MATCH
WELSH AND WHITE

Propose Twenty Round Fight in Frisco on Dec. 15th as Death Knell to Boxing Game.

(By Striker.)
Lately the news of the prize arena has been contesting with the gridiron game and for the last week the gist of the despatches have been the matching and rematching of Charlie White, the Chicago lightweight, and Freddie Welsh, the English champion. Each day brings out some new promoter who has been angling to stage the pair for a twenty round championship title, but not have yet shown sufficient financial inducements to make either boxer take notice.

The latest alleged matching of the pair is by Promoter Coffith, of San Francisco, on December fifteenth. The California promoter has it in his mind to put White against Welsh over the marathon route on the day that boxing is laid at rest under legislative grave, dug by the woman voters at the last election. This would mark the end of boxing in the state and would draw a record breaking crowd and sunny California always has been one of the greatest boxing centers of the nation. New Orleans promoters have been angling to stage the mill down on Gulf city and are bidding high to get the signatures that will bring the pair together again.

Jamestown fans, have especially interest in Welsh's next bout for the championship has signed to meet "Young Shugrue, a coming lightweight, who was born and reared in this city. The match has been set for December second and more than one December second and more than one New York lightweight named Scott, whom Gothorn thinks well off and as a consequence the eastern fans are anxious to see more of him. Shugrue recently returned from Australia, where he established a reputation as defeating the best in the Antipodes. Western papers, notably those of Chicago, appear over anxious to take Welsh's crown away from him, for last week it was reported by many critics that the Buffalo idol, who has defeated the best in the east, New York papers give contrasting reports. It is not an easy feat to knock out a champion, but the New York papers are not giving him the credit he deserves. Freddie Welsh would not be a lightweight champion and Jimmy Duffy, who is virtually invincible round about these parts, battled ten fast rounds and a clean, emerged victorious. There would be no reason that the New York critics should favor Welsh, for he has been an idol of the New York fans but the Gotham scribes are fully before giving their decision.

Johanny Kilbane is a busy fighter these days, defending his featherweight title and "cleaning-up" the weight list. It was reported Kilbane was to be matched with White, for a Milwaukee bout, but nothing has been effected as yet. The feather champion is to meet Mandot at Akron, Ohio, in December, and will battle a couple of tough "feathers" between now and that time. Kilbane is a master in his division, but is liable to prove disastrous for him.

Charlie White will have three fights during December, without present plans to go east. Frankie Calphorn, an eastern reputed lightweight, in an eight round mill at Memphis on December 4. Jimmy Murphy, the tough Italian lightweight will be the Chicago pride's next ring rival, lighter in the Christmas month. The Kilbane match at Milwaukee before Muckers' club will be the third match.

Reported matching of Jack Johnson and Jess Willard for the heavyweight title of the world, has been announced, but nothing authentic has been given out. The proposed fight was to be held either in Juarez or South America, and the ring followers have been hoping that it will be South America, the farther south the better. The Mexicans have fought enough to settle without having the "big ding" on their hands.

RITCHIE MITCHELL WINS
BOUT WITH SCHIEBEL
SCOTTY LOSES DECISION

Milwaukee boxing scribes give Ritchie Mitchell, the Milwaukee "hope" for the featherweight championship, a clean and decisive victory over "Peanuts" Schiebel in ten fast rounds of milling in Milwaukee last night. The first round Schiebel carried the battle to Mitchell and won the opening chapter. Thereafter the Cream City feather solved his opponent's attack, and his class beat "Peanuts" by a wide margin.

Young Scotty received his first setback in his short ring career when Patsy Williams, a veteran trial horse, had a shade on him in six slugging and furious rounds. Honors were even until the fifth, when Williams caught the Jones Island champ a hard swing and floored him for an instant. The bout was too short for Scotty to retrieve his earlier lead. This is the first time that Scotty has ever been knocked off his feet.

MINISTER SAYS JAPS DEFENDING THE EAST

Prime Minister Explains Japan's Relation to West in Eastern Situation.

(Correspondence of The A. P.)
Tokyo, November 23.—In an article entitled "Japan and the European Armageddon," Count Shigenobu Okuma, the Prime Minister, writing in the Japan magazine about the war, says some foreboding things about Japan's relation to the West.

"It will be our one ambition at this time," he writes, "to show the West what it is slow to believe, that we can work harmoniously with great Occidental powers to support and protect the highest ideals of civilization, even to the extent of dying for them. Not only in the Far East but anywhere else that may be necessary, Japan is ready to lay down her life for the principles that the foremost nations will die for. It is to be a line with these nations that she is at this time opposing and fighting what she believes to be opposed to these principles."

The premier continues: "She entered the Alliance with Great Britain to stand for and die for what Anglo-Saxons are everywhere ready to defend even unto death. It is Japan's aim and ambition to participate in the world-movements toward noble diplomacy, international relations and the principle of equal opportunity and peace, and to prevent by one proper means the outbreak or continuance of bloodshed between nations. Japan's relation to the present conflict is as a defender of the things that make for higher civilization and a more permanent peace."

Count Okuma devotes a considerable space to a historical review of the causes of the present international war. Speaking generally, he thinks that war is always due to an unevenness of advancement in the progress of civilization, which like water runs to the level. When its force is obstructed there will be violence and bloodshed. War also is a result of the pressure offered in resistance to the growth of civilization.

Speaking in particular, the premier is inclined to find the root of the present war in the weakness of the Balkan Peninsula, "like China," he claims, "it is a seething crater in the world's diplomacy. From conditions apparently insignificant in themselves, half the world can be set on fire and plunged into distress and decimation."

PASTOR ACCUSED OF
TAKING TAINTED COIN.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Akron, O., Nov. 24.—Rev. James T. Lowe, former pastor of the First United Evangelical Church here will be tried today by a conference of churchmen on charges growing out of his acceptance of checks amounting to several hundred dollars from the Summit County bottlers and brewer's association. Lowe has spent the past two weeks in preparing a statement of his case. "My defense will be a plain statement of the facts," said Lowe here today. "The money was used solely for church purposes and there never was an attempt on my part to conceal the fact that it was given. Brewers' money pays debts as readily as any other money."

Two other Akron churches and the Akron Y. M. C. A. have also confessed to accepting money from the liquor men's association.

A NEW THANKSGIVING SPIRIT.

Crisp, cool days; ripened harvests, gathered and stored in fruitful abundance; a tonic again—why, it's time to give thanks again!

Mrs. Best, the wife of our school superintendent, has an idea of her own about Thanksgiving. "It's one of the most satisfying seasons of the year," she told me, "for people who can have family reunions. For my part, while I'm thankful that I have all of my relatives living, and all near enough to accept my hospitality, yet I do not invite one of them!"

"That does not sound like a good spirit toward one's kin," I thought, but, luckily, a good angel silenced my lips.

"Not that we do not load our table and open our door," she explained. "Because it is a time of homecoming and of having your thanks with someone else who feels kindly toward you; those who are alone feel their isolation, their loneliness, more keenly than ever. Now, I ask on Thanksgiving those who would otherwise give thanks alone or forget to give thanks at all. I can gather my kindred together any other day in the year."

This year the Bests are asking Old Lady Curtis for one. All of her money cannot buy her the companionship of kin; she has outlived all of her blood. Jacky Peebles is to come, too. He is an orphan boy from the country, working his way through high school. Miss Blaisdell, a new teacher in our high school, is several states distant from her home and she cannot afford so long a journey. She, too, is bidden. Gene Bowles, our postmaster, is "bathing," as his neighbors call it, since his wife died. He looks as though his own cooking did not agree with him. He is to join the thankful group around the Bests' turkey—Housewife's Calendar, in Woman's World for November.

This is a good pre-Thanksgiving suggestion, and it might well be adopted by any community, for the "shut-ins" and neglected are found everywhere. Society is not a good mixer, but the one day of the year when it can afford to throw its doors open and welcome the stranger, is Thanksgiving day.

There are lonely women sitting by the ashes of altar fires, long since gone out, where the voices of happy children once made glad the old-time holiday, but the companion of other years has gone, the children are scattered and the generation of old friends is of the past.

It is worth something to bring back the smile to the wrinkled face, and watch the eye as it kindles with old-time brightness, but it is worth more to know that a neglected heart has been made to glow because of kindly sympathy.

Poverty may interfere with the Thanksgiving turkey, but that is not so serious a loss as the unsatisfied hunger of a heart which longs for companionship and human interest. People who are living on borrowed time are not all poverty-stricken, but the most of them are living on the fringe of the has been, and with old associations gone many of them find it difficult to maintain a foothold.

Thanksgiving day should be made a red letter day to these lonely pilgrims, and it may be, if you and I come to their relief.

THE FARCE ENDS.

With the departure of the soldiers of General Funston from Vera Cruz, the turning over of the city to the Mexicans, the last act in the great farce comedy written and produced by Wilson, Bryan and the democratic party closes. Entitled "Waiting," Watchful Woodrow Wilson and disgusted the average American since it began last spring. Even the democratic press of the country is disgusted and goes even further, if possible, in criticising the policy of the administration. The Chicago Examiner prints the following under the caption, "Our Troops Leave Mexico to Anarchy, Riot and Despair."

"The troops of General Funston's expedition are today—like the administration in its efforts to grapple with the Mexican situation—all at sea."

"Unfortunately the administration's Mexican policy has proved an abject failure. The naval demonstration at Tampico was foolish and futile. The military occupation of Vera Cruz accomplished nothing except some improvement in the sanitation of the town. The withdrawal now of the troops with their ostensible errand undone is but the culmination of the vacillating and undisciplined course pursued by the administration in all of its Mexican endeavors."

"We demanded a salute to our flag. The demand itself was an evidence of weakness in its lack of proportion to the offenses committed by Mexico against Americans. But moderate as the demand was, it was contemptuously rejected. What has followed? Nothing but the withdrawal of our troops by which the demand had been emphasized. The proper course would have been for the United States to compel compliance with its proper request. If it were not prepared to enforce its demand that demand should not have been made. As a result we are left in the humiliating position of having had an utterly unproductive request contemptuously rejected."

"The sending of the troops to Vera Cruz was equally inconclusive. The United States should either have sent the troops to the city of Mexico or should not have sent them into Mexico at all."

The United States should have been prepared to protect its citizens in Mexico and to restore peace and order in that country, or it should not have made an empty pretense of doing its duty to its own citizens and citizens."

"The burdens of those in Mexico dependent on this country for protection were heavy before; they will be heavier now. Many Mexicans before were deterred from committing outrages by a respect for the government of the United States. Now they will be prompted to commit them by a contempt for the government of the United States."

"Many Mexicans believed that the United States government under sufficient provocation would protect its citizens. Now these same Mexicans know that the United States government, as at present organized, will not protect its citizens under any circumstances. The United States apparently went into Mexico, not to fulfill its obligation to its own citizens and to society, but merely to meddle in internal Mexican affairs, to depose a president, Huerta, and to install another weaker and less capable in power."

"Carranza is not the choice of the Mexican people. He is merely the choice of Messrs. Bryan and Wilson. He is not particularly disposed to restore peace and order in his own country, nor to protect the foreign people, including our own, who reside there, nor is he competent to do it."

"The situation in Mexico at this very day is worse than it has ever yet been. The whole country is demoralized, devastated, and the action of the United States has done nothing except add to the demoralization."

"The troops have been withdrawn without having either improved the conditions in Mexico or vindicated the dignity of the United States. We have done neither one of the tasks which were their only excuses for having been sent to Mexico."

"The policy of ignorance, indecision and inaction has proved, as every one knew it would prove, an utter and humiliating failure."

"The only hope for Mexico and the only hope for our citizens in Mexico is the ultimate success of some strong man, like Villa, who will be able, by the power of his personality and the military sternness of his methods, to establish some sort of permanent government in Mexico."

"Certainly nothing was to have been gained by continuing our troops at the half-way station of Vera Cruz. Since they were not to be allowed to advance, it is perhaps best that they were told to retreat."

"Our flag has been insulted, our demands have been ridiculed, our country has been humiliated, and the evil conditions in Mexico have been aggravated."

"Let us end the incident as soon as possible and wait for further action until we have an administration at Washington more familiar with the present spirit and the past record of the American people."

when Olson, it is alleged, started on a drunken rampage, shooting a revolver off in the yard and yelling at the top of his voice. Olson was brought to the county jail and will be given ten days of the "diet" cure and will lose his good time off. Olson several months ago was sentenced to six months for larceny, having been arrested for a theft at the Howland residence where he was delivering ice. He had been hired to A. D. Barless and last night went to the Yoman farm. The price of the liquor was obtained from the raffling of two firearms and the liquor was obtained in Janesville from a saloonkeeper who violated the law in selling it to him.

High School Students Will Provide for Forty Families in City Thursday—Baskets to Be Well Filled.

Following a short talk by Miss N. Beth Bailey, instructor of domestic science, at the high school, to the student body Monday morning at the opening of school, relative to feeding the poor on Thanksgiving day, the students became most enthusiastic over the plan suggested. When asked if they desired to follow out this idea the students gave a most hearty affirmative answer.

The work is being carried on under the direction of Miss Bailey, and the baskets are to be filled by the girls of the domestic science department on Wednesday. Wednesday afternoon at the close of school, the baskets will be delivered to the needy families in the city, numbering forty in all. The delivery will be made by the high school students in automobiles provided for by those students having cars.

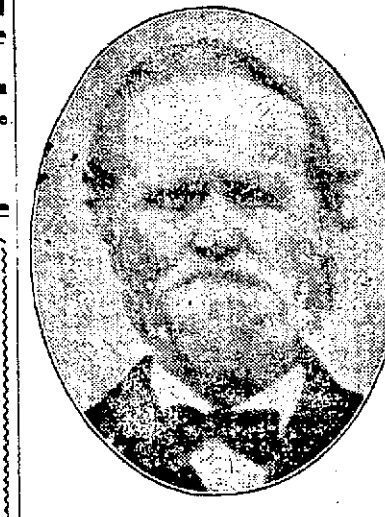

The athletic association of the school generously donated five dollars to the cause, and every student is putting forth every effort to see that not one needy family is overlooked. Every basket will contain some form of meat, together with other delicacies, potatoes, jellies and other eatables to suit the different families, and to meet their needs. To the larger families larger baskets will be provided for.

Whitewater News

WHITEWATER PRIZES ITS NEW MASONIC TEMPLE.

Whitewater, Nov. 21.—Whitewater may feel proud of her Masonic Temple for there is not another to equal it in a Wisconsin city of this size. Now that the addition has been completed and the whole interior has been renovated, it is worth ones while to go through the building to see how convenient it has been made. Five thousand dollars of the legacy left by Mrs. Selma L. Smothers in memory of her husband, was spent on the addition which is 18x24 feet in extent, extending more than the full width of the building on the north end. This makes a large, well lighted club room where the masons may enjoy cards or billiards. On the east wall hangs a photograph of Mr. Smothers underneath which is a bronze tablet which reads, "This addition erected by Selma L. Smothers in memory of her husband, Mr. Smothers, 1914."

The former club room has been converted into an up-to-date kitchen, with new tables, a new range, and sink which stands in the middle of the room. The new system of plumbing has been lengthened, and now can accommodate over a hundred people at one time. The chapter room with the several small rooms adjoining, takes up the whole of the second floor system of the former building and the addition. A raised platform has been built at the north end of the room and fifty new opera chairs have been placed on a raised floor at either side of the room. The new system of semi-indirect lighting has been installed, and the walls have been redecorated by the associated artists of Wisconsin, C. A. Brockmuller, being president of the new system. The ladies are beautiful with their soft tints of cream, tan or light green, and a conventional border of harmonizing tones, but none surpass the dignity of the cream walls and gold borders in the club room which is the meeting place of St. John's Lodge No. 57, (Blue Lodge), Whitewater Chapter Na. 60 and the Muncie Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star. Last night, when the new system of the Royal Arch Masons to confer the degree to three lodge members from Palmyra, after which a supper was served in the spacious dining room. This is the first occasion which has been held since the reopening of the Temple, and may there be more to follow.

The exterior of the building has been improved by four large columns of Bedford stone to take the place of the four unsatisfactory pillars which were cracking and decaying. Each column weighs five tons, is nineteen feet high and twenty eight inches in diameter at the base. The gray-white stone, contrasted with the red pressed brick of the structure makes an ornamental worth visiting at the corner of Main and Fremont streets.

Mrs. Bentley Dardman entertained about twenty ladies at "Bridges" Saturday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Rathernam who has been her guest the past month. Miss Janet Shildell had the highest score, and carried off the honors of the day.

Mrs. T. F. McKim went to Chicago this morning to spend the day with her sister en route to Pittsburgh, to visit her daughter, Mrs. Tolds.

CARD OF THANKS
We desire to thank our friends and neighbors for their many kindnesses and beautiful floral offerings during the illness and death of our wife and mother.

O. H. FLORIDA & FAMILY.

COUNTY FAIR A BIG ATTRACTION; THEFT LEAD TO AN ARREST

One Member Taken Into Custody by Officer Hymer—Pays 25 Cent Fine and is Released.

With such features as the bridal chamber, with a horse bride laying on a chair, a tiger baby stand, a "hot dawg" wagon, a prize art gallery, the famous Belgian dwarf, Mme. La Zore, the snake charmer, a set of boyie gloves, several animal tents, prize booth and jabberwock owned by Miss Katie Nelson, the first annual county fair was held last evening at the club room of the drama club, when fifty members of the Jansville Dramatic Society were present. The drama club concluded at the close of the entertainment that it revolved, it not exceeded, the immigration social held a year ago.

At the time the sideshows were going on, evidence pointed to Miss Mary Enright, the member disguised as a pickpocket, as having stolen some articles and even money from the various stands about the room. Various complaints by the owners of the stands to the police, Officers J. Hymer and L. Cain were ordered to arrest the thief. A few minutes later she paid her fine of 25 cents and was released. This incident was a cleverly prepared one by several of the club members. For their hasty work, Officers Hymer and Cain were each given a "hot dawg" and a cup of coffee by the Misses Mabel Greenman and Jennie Boomer, who had charge of the lunch wagon.

Raymond Barnes, Allen Dearborn, in a cleverly staged play, the part of a Belgian dwarf. The art gallery was originated by the Misses Lenora Castford and Mary Buckmaster. Frank K. Doane was the loud Barker for the evening. F. Fraunfelder acted as the groundskeeper and grounds policeman. Miss Rose Morrissey was the greatest snare charmer. The bowling alleys were taken care of by "Rastus," impersonated by Miss Leora Westlake. A booth of dumb animals, with the sign, "Please Do Not Feed the Animals," was located at one end of the room. Clever prizes were awarded to the winners in the various contests.

The entertainment closed about ten o'clock, after an amusing flat of features that resembled the county fair of the more old fashioned type. Ancient and modern costumes were worn by the country and city visitors, as they were respectively impersonated.

DROP OF TEN CENTS IN PRICE OF HOGS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, Nov. 24.—Hogs prices were fully ten cents lower this morning as the result of a weak market. Receipts at 55,000 were more than the trade demand and bulk of sales ranged from $7.30 to $7.60. DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—But Father Didn't Figure on Grace

BY F. LEPSIGER

Carelessness Cause of Fires.
More than 50 per cent of all fires are caused by simple carelessness, which is unnecessary and criminal. Repairs to dilapidated buildings, the removal of all fire breeding material, care in burning weeds and rubbish, the placing of engines at a safe distance from buildings, the removal of oily waste, proper ventilation—in brief, plain common sense, will minimize the danger from this class of fires.

WOMAN NERVOUS, WEAK AND DIZZY

Could Not Do Housework for Family of Three, Vinol in a Short Time Made Her a Strong Well Woman.

Port Edward, N. Y.—"I was in a run-down condition, nervous, weak and dizzy, so that in doing the housework for my little family of three, I would be all exhausted. I tried cod liver oil emulsions and three or four other medicines without benefit. Finally a friend told me about Vinol and I tried it. I soon felt better and now I have built up my strength, I have no more nervous or dizzy spells, and can do all my housework without getting all tired out."—Mrs. Elmer Glidden, Port Edward, N. Y.

Women are so active nowadays, and so much is expected of them, that they constantly overdo and suffer from headaches, backache, nervousness and kindred ills. Vinol is a most efficient strength creator for such women.

It is the medicinal elements of the cod's liver, aided by the blood making and strengthening properties of tonic iron which makes it so far superior to all other tonics.

If you are in this condition try Vinol on our guarantee to return your money if it fails. Smith Drug Co., Janesville, Wis.

NOTE—You can get Vinol at the leading drug store in every town where this paper circulates.

Lime Treatment in Tuberculosis

In the May 25, 1912, issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association appeared this statement concerning calcium (lime) medication in the treatment of pulmonary tuberculosis (consumption):

"Under the systematic, continued and persistent use of calcium assimilation, Van Gieson has seen a number of his patients improve, undergo an excitation or partial consolidation in the lung, which then resists the waiting off and clearing of the lesions. Hand in hand with this course of events, the sputum clears up, the tubercle bacilli finally disappear, and the patients are discharged with healed pulmonary tuberculosis."

Ethical medical journals seldom speak so positively about a remedial agent, yet this testimony coincides with that from many consumptives who have secured like results through the use of Eckman's Alternative.

Since calcium is a constituent of this remedy for pulmonary tuberculosis and allied throat and bronchial affections, its healing power may in some measure be attributed to the manner in which it is taken. If you are out of it, ask him for Eckman's Alternative, Philadelphia.

The CALL of the CUMBERLANDS

BY CHARLES NEVILLE BUCK
WITH ILLUSTRATIONS FROM PHOTOGRAPHS OF SCENES IN THE PLAY

"Them dawgs of your'n come up Misery a-hellin'." They hain't never turned aside, an' orless they're plumb ornery, no-count curs that don't know their business, they come for some reason. They seemed mighty interested in gittin' hyar. Ax them fellers in thar who's been hyar that hain't hyar now? Who is ther feller that got out afore we come hyar?"

At this veiled charge of deceit the faces of the Souths again blackened and the men near the door of the house drifted in to drift presently out again, swinging discarded Winchester rifles at their sides. It seemed that, after all, the incident was not closed. The man from Lexington, finding himself safe to face with a new difficulty, turned and argued in a low voice with the Hollman leader. But Jim Hollman, whose eyes were fixed on Samson, refused to talk in a modulated tone, and he shouted his reply:

"I hain't got nothin' ter whisper about," he proclaimed. "Go ax 'em who hit war that got away from hyar."

Old Spicer South stood leaning on his fence and his rugged countenance stiffened. He started to speak, but Samson rose from the stile and said, in a composed voice:

"Let me talk to this feller, Unc' Spicer." The old man nodded and Samson beckoned to the owner of the dogs.

"We hain't got nothin' ter say ter them fellers with ye," he announced, briefly. "We hain't axin' 'em no questions, an' we hain't answerin' none. Ye done come hyar with dawgs an' we hain't stopped ye. We've done answered all the questions them dawgs has axed. We done treated you an' your houn's plumb friendly. Es fer them other men, we hain't got nothin' ter say to 'em. They done come hyar because they hoped they could git me in trouble. They done failed. That road belongs ter the county. They got a license ter travel hit, but this strip right hyar hain't the healthiest section they kin find. I reckon ye'd better advise 'em ter move on."

The Lexington man went back. For a minute or two Jim Hollman sat scowling down in indecision from his saddle. Then he admitted to himself that he had done all he could do without becoming the aggressor. For the moment he was beaten. He looked up and from the road one of the hounds raised its voice and gave cry. That, saying afforded an excuse for leaving and Jim Hollman seized it.

"Go on," he growled. "Let's see what them d—d curs hes ter say now."

Mounting, they kicked their mules into a jog. From the men inside the fence came no note of derision, no hint of triumph. They stood looking out with expressionless, masklike faces until their enemies had passed out of sight around the shoulder of the mountain. The Souths had met and fronted an accusation made after the enemy's own choice and method. A jury of two hounds had acquitted them. It was not only because the dogs had refused to recognize in Samson a suspicious character, that the enemy rode on grudgingly convinced, but also, because the family, which had invariably met hostility with hostility, had so willingly courted the acid test of guilt or innocence.

Days passed uneventfully after that. The kinsmen dispersed to their scattered coves and cabins. Now and again came a rumor that Jesse Purvy was dying, but always hard on its heels came another to the effect that the obdurate fighter had rallied, though the doctors held out small encouragement of recovery.

One day Lescott, whose bandaged arm gave him much pain, but who was able to get about, was strolling not far from the house with Samson. They were following a narrow trail along the mountain side, and at a sound no louder than the falling of a walnut, the boy halted and laid a silencing hand on the painter's shoulder. Then followed an unspoken command in his companion's eyes. Lescott sank down behind a rock, cloaked with glistening rhododendron leafage, where Samson had already crouched and become immovable and noiseless. They had been there only a short time when they saw another figure slipping out-etly from tree to tree below them.

For a time the mountain boy watched the figure and the painter saw his lips draw in a straight line and his eyes narrow with a glint of tense hate. Yet, a moment later, with a nod to follow, the boy unexpectedly rose into view and his features were absolutely expressionless.

"Mornin', Jim," he called.

The slinking stranger whirled with a start and an instinctive motion as though to bring his rifle to his shoulder. But, seeing Samson's peaceable manner, he smiled and his own demeanor became friendly.

"Mornin', Samson."

"Kinder stranger in this country, hain't ye, Jim?" drawled the boy who lived there, and the question brought a sullen flush to the other's cheek bones.

"Just a passin' through," he vouchsafed.

"I reckon ye'd find the wagon road more handy," suggested Samson. "Some folks might 'spicion ye fer stealin' long through the timber."

The slinking traveler decided to lie plausibly. He laughed mendaciously. "That's the reason, Samson. I was kinder skeered ter go through this country in the open."

Samson met his eye steadily and said slowly:

"I reckon, Jim, hit mought be half as risky fer ye ter walk upstadin' along Misery es ter go a-crouchin'." Ye thinks ye've been a-shadderin' me. I knows jest whar ye've been all the time. Ye lies when ye talks 'bout passin' through. Ye've done been spyin' hyar, ever since Jesse Purvy got shot, an' all that time ye've done been watchin' yerself. I reckon hit'll be healthier fer ye ter do yore spyin' from t'other side of the ridge. I reckon yer allowin' ter git me ef Purvy dies, but we're watchin' ye."

Jim Asberry's face darkened, but he said nothing. There was nothing to say. He was discovered in the enemy's country and must accept the enemy's terms.

"This hyar time I lets ye go back," said Samson, "fer the reason that I'm tryin' like all b—t ter keep this truce. But ye must stay on yore side or else ride the roads open. How is Purvy terday?"

"He's mighty poorly," replied the other, in a sullen voice.

"All right. That's another reason why hit hain't healthy fer ye over hyar."

The spy turned and made his way over the mountain.

"D—n him!" muttered Samson, his face twitching, as the other was lost in the undergrowth. "Some day I'm a-goin' ter git him."

Tamarack Spicer did not at once reappear, and when one of the Souths met another in the road the customary dialogue would be: "Heered anything of Tamarack?" . . . "No, hev you?"

"No, nary a word."

As Lescott wandered through the hills, his unhurt right hand began crying out for action and a brush to nurse. As he watched, day after day, the unveiling of the monumental hills and the transitions from hazy, wraith-like whispers of hues to strong, glaring riot of color, this fret of restlessness became actual pain. He was wasting wonderful opportunity and the creative instinct in him was clamoring.

One morning, when he came out just after sunrise to the tin wash basin at the well, the desire to paint was on him with compelling force. The hills ended near their bases like things bitten off. Beyond lay limitless streamers of mist, but while he stood at gaze, the filmy veil began to lift and float higher. Trees and mountains grew taller. The sun, which showed first as a ghost-like disk of polished aluminum, struggled through orange and vermilion into a sphere of living flame. Lescott heard a voice at his side.

"When does ye 'low ter commence paintin'?"

It was Samson. For answer the artist, with his unhurt hand, impatiently tapped his bandaged wrist.

"Ye still got yore right hand, hain't ye?" demanded the boy. The other laughed. It was a typical question. So long as one had the trigger finger left one should not admit disqualification.

"You see, Samson," he explained, "this isn't precisely like handling a gun. One must hold the palette; mix the colors; wipe the brushes and do half a dozen equally necessary things. It requires at least two perfectly good hands. Many people don't find two enough."

"But hit only takes one ter do the paintin', don't hit?"

"Yes."

"Well"—the boy spoke diffidently but with enthusiasm—"between the two of us we've got three hands. I reckon ye kin learn me how ter do them other things fer ye."

Lescott's surprise showed in his face and the lad swept eagerly on.

"Mebby hit hain't none of my business, but, all day yestiddy an' the day befo', I was studyin' 'bout this here thing, an' I hustled up an' got that corn weeded an' now I'm through. Ef I kin help ye out I thought mebby—" He paused and looked appealingly at the artist.

Lescott whistled and then his face lighted into contentment.

"Today, Samson," he announced, "Lescott, South and Company get busy."

It was the first time he had seen Samson smile, and, although the expression was one of sheer delight, inherent somberness loaned it a touch of the wistful.

When, an hour later, the two set out, the mountain boy carried the paraphernalia and the old man standing at the door watched them off with a half-quizzical, half-disapproving glance.

As the boy, with remarkable aptitude, learned how to adjust the easel and arrange the paraphernalia, Lescott sat drinking in through thirsty eyes the stretch of landscape he had determined to paint.

Then, while he painted, the boy held the palette, his eyes riveted on the canvas, which was growing from a blank to a mirror of vistas—and the boy's pupils became deeply hungry.

The day of painting was followed by others like it. The disabling of Lescott's left hand made the constant companionship of the boy a matter that needed no explanation or apology, though not a matter of approval to his uncle.

Another week had passed without the reappearance of Tamarack Spicer. One afternoon Lescott and Samson were alone on a cliff-protected shelf, and the painter had just blocked in with amber and neutral tint the crude sketch of his next picture.

The two men had lost an hour huddled under a canopy beneath the cannonading of a sudden storm. They had silently watched titanic battalions of thunder clouds riding the sides in gusty puffs of gale and raking the earth with lightning and hail and water.

"My God!" exclaimed the mountain boy abruptly. "I'd give anything ef I could paint that."

Lescott rose smilingly from his seat before the easel and surrendered his palette and sheaf of brushes.

"Try it," he invited.

For a moment Samson stood hesitant and overcome with diffidence; then, with set lips, he took his place and experimentally fitted his fingers about the brush, as he had seen Lescott do. He asked no advice. He merely gazed for a while, and then, dipping a brush and experimenting for his color, went to sweeping in his primary tones. Samson, even though he was hopelessly daubing, and knew it, was sincere, and the painter at his elbow caught his breath and looked on with the absorption of a prophet, who, listening to childish prattle, yet recognizes the gift of prophecy.

Corns Quit, Pains Stop, With "Gets-It"

Quit Plasters, Salves and What-Not. After using "GETS-IT" once you will never again have occasion for asking, "What can I do to get rid of my corns?" "GETS-IT" is the first sure, certain corn-remover ever known. If you have tried other things by the score and will now try "GETS-IT," you will realize this glorious fact. You probably are tired sticking on tape that won't stay stuck, plasters that chafe themselves right out of your corns, contraptions that make a bundle of your toe and press right down on the corn. Put two drops of "GETS-IT" on that corn in two seconds. The corn is then doomed as sure as night follows day. The corn shrivels. There's no pain. No fuss. If you think this sounds too good to be true try it tonight on any corn, callus, wart or bunion. "GETS-IT" is sold by druggists everywhere, in a bottle, or sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago.

"That's the way hit looks ter me," the boy said, simply.

"That's the way it is," commended his critic.

For a while more, Samson worked at the nearer hills, then he rose.

"I'm done," he said. "hain't a-goin' ter fool with them thar trees an' things. I don't know nothing about that. I can't paint leaves an' twigs an' birdsnests. What I like is mountings an' skies, an' seel-like things."

Lescott looked at the daub before him. A less trained eye would have seen only the daub, just as a poor judge of horsemanship might see only awkward joints and long legs in a weanling colt, though it be bred in the purple.

"Samson," he said, earnestly, "that's all there is to art. It's the power to feel the poetry of color. The rest can be taught. The genius must work, of course—work, work, work, and still work, but the gift is the power of seeing true—and, by God, boy, you have it. You've got what many men have struggled a lifetime for, and failed. I'd like to have you study with me. I'd like to be your discoverer. Look here."

The painter sat down, and speedily went to work. He painted out nothing. He simply toned, and, with precisely the right touch here and there, softened the crudeness, laid stress on the contrast, melted the harshness, and, when he rose, he had built, upon the rough cornerstone of Samson's laying, a picture.

"That proves it," he said. "I had only to finish. I didn't have much to undo. Boy, you're wasting yourself. Come with me, and let me make you. We all pretend there is no such thing, in these days, as sheer genius; but, deep down, we know that, unless there is, there can be no such thing as true art. There is genius and you have it." Enthusiasm was again sweeping him into an unintended outburst.

The boy stood silent. Across his countenance swept a conflict of emotions. He looked away, as if taking counsel with the hills.

AND HE DID—

Dinner Stories

It was an amateur performance of "The Pirates of Penzance." The policemen's chorus having been encored twice, a third encore was demanded. This was the cause of some misunderstanding behind the scenes, and after a delay one solitary man in blue faced the footlights. In vain he waited for his companions, even beckoned to them in his despair, but his individual efforts were not to meet with appreciation, for a voice from the gods shouted, "Hi, man, you're off your beat!"

Nat Goodwin once told of an experience he had with a juvenile dead-end in a western town. Standing outside the theatre a little time before the performance was due to begin he observed a small boy with an anxious, forlorn look on his face and a weedy looking pup in his arms. Goodwin inquired what was the matter, and was told that the boy wished to sell the dog so as to raise the price of a seat in the gallery. The actor suspected at once a dodge to secure a pass on the "sympathy racket," but allowing himself to be taken in he gave the boy a pass. The dog was deposited in a safe place and the boy was able to watch Goodwin as the Gilded Fool from a good seat in the gallery. Next day Goodwin saw the boy again near the theatre, so he asked: "Well, sonny, how did you like the show?" "I'm glad I didn't sell my dog," was the reply.

"Did you get any pleasure out of that cigar I gave you?" "Yes, it made me so sick that I had to take a week's vacation."

His Limitations.
Eb Chalmers, a Newberry clerk of court, was once approached by a politician who had managed to get himself appointed to a public position. "Eb," he said, "I want you to qualify me for office." The plain-spoken old Covenanter replied, "I can swear you, but all hell couldn't qualify you."—London Mail.

"I am, to speak roughly, 'all in,' said a young woman to her brother as she hopped out of their small roadster at the door of her parent's home. "We have been out to Blank's to their auction, and it was almost like a quaker meeting. So different from the auction over at Dash's, that we attended last week. Put the car in the shed. I'm going in and have some refreshments; I did not even try to eat out there."

"The difference was due to the fact," her know-it-all brother went on to tell, "that the Blank's scorn the medium of advertising, while the Dash's just go right up and eat out of the advertising manager's hand—so eager are they to break in to print with anything they have to trade, buy or sell."

TRACE ROBBER NEAR HIS ROCKFORD HOME

James Ludwig, Alleged to Have Stolen Goods at Employer's Home Near Atton, Makes His Escape.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Atton, Nov. 23.—All suspicion of a robbery that was committed some time yesterday at the W. P. Sharp farm, better known as the Emerson estate, three miles west of Atton, is centered on James Ludwig, a farm hand for Mr. Sharp, and a youth who makes Rockford his home.

While Mr. and Mrs. Sharp and family were at Milton Junction yesterday it is supposed that the theft was committed. Upon the family's return to their home, they discovered that two valuable rings, a gentleman's gold watch and a hiker's canteen, were missing between three and four dollars, had been stolen. Unable to locate Ludwig, Mr. Sharp believed him to have gone to his Rockford home, and Monday morning took an automobile to Rockford to search for him.

Upon reaching the Ludwig home, James was seen making a further escape from the rear of the house. Bloodhounds traced him to the railroad tracks, but from there he disappeared.

It is believed he jumped a train leaving the city toward Chicago.

SILOS GAIN FAVOR ON BADGER FARMS

Final Wisconsin Crop Report Shows Twenty Per Cent Increase—1,107 In Rock County.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 24.—An increase of about 20 per cent in number of silos over last year is noted in statistics compiled for the final crop report of the state board of agriculture, made public today. The number is approximately 47,165. The estimated number of silos in Rock county is 1,107. Hog cholera losses in the aggregate were slight, the report quoting them at 2.1 per cent.

"With an increased number of reporters in all sections of Wisconsin over the number reporting to this office one year ago," says Secretary J. C. Mackenzie in the report, "we have made an effort to secure more accurate estimates on the number of silos in Wisconsin and submit here with tables showing the number credited to each county in the state. The report shows a total number of 47,165. This would indicate an increase of but 13 per cent over the average reported in 1913. The actual increase, however, is nearer 20 per cent. In our published report for 1913 the number of silos given in some of the counties was in excess of the total actually built, and printers' errors in a few counties increased the number beyond the actual number in use. In answer to the question as to what material is commonly used for building silos, 27 reporters in the northern division state that wood is the most commonly used and 17 report concrete as the most popular material. In the central division 35 report that concrete is the most common building material, 24 wood, two tile and one brick; in the southern division 29 concrete, 20 wood, four brick and four tile.

"The average yield of clover seed for the state is 2.5 bushels and the quality of the product is 94.9 per cent. The average yield of timothy seed is 5.3 bushels and the quality of the product 95.5 per cent.

"The percentage of the 1914 products remaining in the hands of the farmer are as follows: Wheat, 81.3 per cent; rye, 74.1; barley, 77.3; oats, 85.3; corn, 11.6; buckwheat, 88.9; flax, 88.2; clover seed, 85.2; timothy seed, 81.9; beans, 87.1; peas, 46.6; potatoes, 62.5; sugar beets, 44.5; tame hay, 88.

"Following is the comparative acreage and condition of seeding for the season 1914: Timothy, acreage, 97, condition, 98.3; clover, acreage, 100.9, condition, 98.8; alfalfa, acreage, 100, condition, 99.4; winter wheat, acreage, 29.6, condition, 99.2; winter rye, acreage, 97.8, condition, 98.6.

"Of plowing 56.6 per cent was done Nov. 1. There remains in the hands of the farmer 4.3 per cent of the 1913 corn crop. The percentage of cattle fed for market as compared with 1913 is 93.7 of 1913, of sheep 98.

"The percentage of loss from hog cholera in the entire state was 2.1 per cent, the disease being most prevalent in Racine, Dodge, Grant, Waushara, Green, Lake and Pepin counties.

"There is a general complaint relative to the low price of potatoes, many producers having stored their potatoes in the field awaiting a more favorable price."

ANNETTE KELLERMANN DIVES IN MOVIE FILMS

"Neptune's Daughter," Fanciful Play, Stars Swimmer as Real Mermaid.

It was to be expected in these movie-mad days, when the cinema impresarios are casting about for ideas for films that Annette Kellermann should have been appropriated for their uses. For Miss Kellermann is an expert swimmer and diver and she is blessed with a figure, which for grace of line, might almost bring the blush of envy to the stone cheeks of Venus de Milo.

So Miss Kellermann was seen in motion pictures yesterday at Myer's Theatre. "Neptune's Daughter" was the title of the picture, from which it may be gathered that both of the aforesaid assets are made the most of.

The pictures unfold a fanciful tale of a mermaid, who, to avenge the death of her baby sister dragged up from the sea by fishermen and left to die on the sands, translates herself into a mortal and enchants the king who rules over the fishermen with her beauty. At first she plans to kill him, but instead she causes him to issue an order forbidding fishing.

The subjects rise in revolt at this curtailment of their ancestral rights and it is Neptune's daughter, lonely for the love of her king in her old ocean haunts whither she has returned, who comes up again from the sea, and restored to mortal form, routs the king's enemies.

Here is fancy for the imaginative, melodrama for the thrill seeker, and beautiful photography for those who do not care particularly about the story, so long as the pictures are artistic. It is in this last respect that the pictures make their widest appeal.

The films were made in Bermuda, the picturesque coast and semi-tropical verdure of which provide a luxurious background for the many scenes. The scenario allows Miss Kellermann to show her skill in the water, and it also demonstrates more fully than her stage career has that she has considerable ability as an actress. There is something to appeal to every movie fan in "Neptune's Daughter," which will be shown again and for the last time tonight.

AT MYERS THEATRE

Addison Burkhardt, author of "Louisiana Lou" and several other musical successes, is co-author of the new run show, called "One Girl in a Million," which has just closed a big hit run of 150 performances in the La Salle opera house, Chicago. "Addie," as he is called by his friends, is noted as one of the best lyric writers in the field of American authors. One of his clever hits runs as follows, and his definition of "Love" is generally accepted:

He—"The Comedy of Love."

He—Love is a song in the spring of life.

She—Love is a new spring hat.

He—Love is a cottage 'neath sunny skies.

She—Love is a steamless flat.

He—Love is a seat in the lap of bliss.

She—Love often weighs a ton.

He—Love is the cherry in the cocktail of life.

She—Marriage is an endless bun.

This is the chorus of one of the songs in "One Girl in a Million," which comes to the Myers Theatre tomorrow, matinee and evening.

The company comes almost direct from its lengthy season in Chicago. The cast is intact and headed by the live-wire comedian, Felix Adler. The chorus is one of the features of the ensemble numbers.

Federal Animal Industry Make Examination of Herd Today and Find First Symptoms of Fever.

Evansville, Nov. 23.—Another case of hoof and mouth disease (apathous fever) was suspected on the two farms owned by Arthur Franklin. One farm is the place on which they reside, and the other is also owned by him but known as the Wilder farm, and is unoccupied. At the first appearance of any disease of a suspicious character Mr. Franklin sent for Inspector Dugman of Milwaukee, who inspected both herds. He announced himself unable to say that either animals were afflicted, but quarantined both herds and isolated each of the animals in the herds. They will be kept separate for several days, awaiting any further developments toward the disease.

The Miller farm adjoins the Franklin place and the latter herd has been very closely watched, owing to the fact that the two pastures adjoined, and the disease might have been transmitted.

Doctors Cass and Johnson of the Federal Bureau of Animal Industry arrived here today (Tuesday) to pass on the case of the Franklin herds. Of three cows put through the test, two showed the first symptoms of fever, ulcers and sores being found under the tongues.

Mr. Franklin stated that his cattle had never had the fever previously and that they had never been near an infected herd.

They will be isolated for a period of several weeks, and meanwhile watched closely for any further outbreak.

They were brought to the farm four weeks ago from Chicago. Dr. Johnson, who is inspecting the herd, has just returned from the Philippines. The disease is much prevalent among cattle there, and Dr. Johnson spent his entire time in the islands making a study of the fever.

Evansville, Nov. 24.—Mrs. Mary Morgan, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Maria Leedle, left this noon for Racine, where she will be married tomorrow noon to William Atkinson of Crescent, Iowa. They leave Racine immediately for a visit with friends at Crescent, Iowa, after which they will be at home to their friends at Evansville.

Mrs. Morgan has spent practically all her life at Evansville and her many friends wish her happiness. Mr. Atkinson is a retired farmer of Crescent, Ia., and very well thought of by the community in which he resides.
